

The grandson of Amaterasu comes down to this world ~Tenson korin □□□□

Ameno-Uzume and Sarutahiko

□Then, Amaterasu (she lives in Takamagahara) decided to let her son go down, but he refused because his baby had just been born at this timing. Finally, she decided to let the grandson go down. His name was “Ninigi”.

□Ninigi took many attendants. One of them was Ameno-Uzume. On the way, they met a mysterious deity at a branching point on the road. He was tall and had a long nose on his face. Ninigi suspected him and had Uzume question him.

“This is Ninigi. Why are you on the road ?” Uzume questioned. The mysterious deity answered.

“My name is Sarutahiko. I have waited you to guide the way.”

□Having cleared all misunderstandings. Ninigi had Sarutahiko and Uzume married, and then, they went down and reached the summit of Takachiho (people presume that this area is in present day Kyushu □□ area).

□From this legend, people considered Sarutahiko a deity of guidance and we can often see his figure walking at top of ceremonial processions. In addition, his figure is similar to “Tengu □□ (this is a legendary being in mountains)”. Both have a long and high nose.
